Between 100 years old olive trees, vineyards and the snow-capped Andes: Living on a Wine Lodge in Mendoza

About Mendoza and the Wine Lodge

The Malbec vineyards, the one-hundred-year-old olive grove, the park and the setting of the snow-capped Andes create a quiet and private atmosphere that fills the soul with joy.

The Inn is an historic construction that dates back to the 19th century. It was carefully re-built to preserve the quality of the material and the original atmosphere. Ever since its creation, the house used by the people in charge of the Don Ángel Cavagnaro`s farm. The main house – one of the most traditional in the area – is located next to the Inn. Its high English style ceilings are central to the setting and so is the enormous terebinth tree.

The design of the inn preserves and combines the features of a typical country house in Mendoza – including a large, spacious gallery – with the safety and comfort of a modern hotel. The three bedrooms with private bathrooms invite one to rest and relax, away from the hustle and bustle of the city, with the birds singing in the background.

In the gallery, you can have a glass of wine and a selection of cheeses at sunset while admiring the vineyards, the olive trees and beyond that the snow-capped Andes.

The pool of the inn is another ideal spot to relax. Located among the vines of Malbec, this spot is well worth an evening drink and snack to take in the peace of the surrounding grounds.
